

Davis Langdon PKS Cork

In 2005, the Davis Langdon PKS office in Cork was established to strengthen our service in the expanding property and construction sectors in Cork and the south.

Working closely with our colleagues in Limerick, Galway and Dublin, the Cork office completes the nationwide coverage of the practice and brings a local Davis Langdon PKS quality service to the Ireland's third largest City.

From major education sector projects, such as those for University College Cork, to multi-million euro retail led projects in Mallow, the Cork office is already successfully delivering large projects in the region.

The office is managed by Andrew Langmaid (alangmaid@dlpks.ie) who, whilst originally from South Wales, graduated from Reading University before going on to become a Partner in the London office of Davis Langdon. He gained extensive experience on multi-million pound projects with clients such as Hammerson plc, Waitrose, the John Lewis Partnership and Cardiff University and worked alongside exciting international designers such as Sir Norman Foster and HOK. Whilst working in London, Andrew also studied part-time for a master's degree in business administration (MBA) at Henley Management College, graduating in 2003.

The Davis Langdon PKS office is situated in the heart of Cork's business district at Hibernian House, 80A South Mall, Cork.

Projects Include:

University College Dublin

- Postgraduate Research Library
- Information Technology Building

Cork County Council - Cork Civic Offices

Cork Consultants Clinic

Brown Thomas

Breast Screening Unit at South Infirmary, Cork

1. Cork Consultants Clinic
2. UCC Postgraduate Research Library
3. Cork Civic Offices
4. Brown Thomas Cork

